

Kahnawake Census 1901

Kahnawàke (Caughnawaga), situated to the south of Montreal, was established as a Jesuit Mission outpost in the late seventeenth century. Although Mohawks comprised the overwhelming majority of Kahnawàke's early settlers, Onondaga and Oneida migrants would appear also to have contributed to the mission's early population.

The census taker for Kahnawake wrote in French, so an English translation has here been given wherever possible (e.g. Cultivateur > Farmer, Constructeur de Ponts > Bridge Builder, etc). Where a translation is doubtful or where a word may have had a different meaning, the original French has also been given in brackets.
